FROM THE PASTOR

Democracies need compromise to make things work. In particular, the form of representative democracy we have in our country was founded with compromise at the very heart of the decision-making process. That is not to say that politics has not been a venue for virulent disagreement. We dare not forget that just a few miles below the George Washington Bridge, two political and personal opponents participated in a gun duel when our nation was very young. Nonetheless, the way of compromise was the only way to govern, if governing was to happen at all.

Compromise is the protein of the democratic system. For years now, we have been headed in a direction away from compromise and consultative planning, to a political sphere that is “boiling” down to inertia. It is not a good place to be, especially living in a flat world wherein national boundaries mean less and economic challenges across the globe mean more and more to the average person. The economic “meltdown” that we gave to Europe through a lack of regulations in the financial markets here may come back to us in another way, with the problems we hear about in Greece and in the Euro zone. Life is more complicated than ever—economically, socially and technologically.

To be sure, the complexities require intelligent information gathering and discussion. Sound bites, text messages and even emails just don’t foster this kind of in-depth conversation. It seems that it is much easier to talk past someone today rather than to raise questions, encourage dialogue and listen to the other person’s opinion. Everybody seems to have all the answers.

The point of my article is to encourage conversation on some of the most challenging economic issues we are facing. I recently heard a young person, who is part of the “Occupy Wall Street” movement, encourage Americans to be a part of the discussion around some of the basic questions facing us today. In response to a question about what he thought is the mission of the “Occupy Wall Street Movement”, this thoughtful young man said that, if nothing else, he believed that the mission would be accomplished if more young Americans began discussing the issues facing our nation and the world.

We should not disregard this point. We have seen young people around the world take their futures seriously. In our land, we have not seen this kind of engagement since the days of the Vietnam War, from which a number of our citizens continue to experience the ravages of that war with a variety of illnesses and struggles. Young people in this land helped change the course of history.

When I am faced with difficult questions, when there is a prevailing sense that a new course must be forged, I find it helpful to look to those who struggled with similar problems in history and to learn what they did in the hope that their approach might be helpful.

St. Augustine, whom we observe on August 28 in our liturgical commemorations, is one such person. He lived at a time of great confusion and change. In the fourth and early fifth centuries, he was a maker of history and a builder of the bridge that led from the old world to the new world. His personal story is quite a “read” and his coming to faith an inspiring journey, to be sure. His exceptional talents were recognized, leading to his consecration as the Bishop of Hippo, North Africa, in 395. Augustine was a thinker and a good leader who helped change the course of human history. What is particularly noteworthy is that he was a pagan, turned Christian, whose intellect helped shape a new day.

We are now in the season of Advent, a season of an audacious hope, a new day. Advent invites us to an undaunted hope that has the power to change how we live, act, think and decide, but even this hope comes through conversation and dialogue, maybe even compromise. This is just one reason why a disciplined life of attending Worship Services is critical to our lives. We are drawn to the conversation around the Lord’s Table of grace, worn from living out the week, renewed in the waters of our baptism, warned and made well again by the Word, sent out thankfully sharing with the world the Word we have received as a gift.

Surely, for Christians, God’s grace can only offer us hope as we live in a world of change and uncertainty. It buoys us to raise questions and share in conversation around some of the important questions facing our country, if not the world. One good question to begin asking is what is the purpose of our economic system in the first place? Another is, what can we learn from the past about the issues before us today? Are my views being informed by sound bites on T.V. or by the books I read and the subjects studied?

The problem with living in a representative democracy is that it requires people give time to being engaged in governing. For many, our economic system does not allow for such time. Our work and the complexities of life are demanding, for sure, but that may be a matter to consider, as well.

Without question, Christians have a place in the public square. God has put us there. Just as Jesus is sent to us at Bethlehem, to be engaged in the human struggle for justice and for the peace of salvation, so we are sent to be engaged in the important matters of our day. In the public square, Christians serve with a deep respect for the faith and views of others, alongside a deep passion for those who are the most vulnerable among us.

ON SUPERBOWL SUNDAY FEBRUARY 5TH...

LET'S HAVE A

Starting January 22nd, we will be collecting cans of soup to fight hunger in our community. With all the snacking and feasting we do watching football, let us share with others, and fill the shelves of People to People.

STEWARDSHIP

Scripture gives us specific directions regarding financial stewardship. This is an important part of the Christian life, and is a significant aspect of our relationship with Jesus. Following are five directives regarding our giving, and where they are referenced in the Bible. Please take the time to read these few verses:

Give First – Deuteronomy 26:1,2

Give Intentionally – 2nd Corinthians 9:7

Give Proportionately – 2nd Corinthians 8:3,4

Give Generously – 2nd Corinthians 8:1,2

Give Cheerfully – 2nd Corinthians 9:7

OKTOBERFEST THANK YOU!

A big thank you to the Fellowship co-chairs and the work they put into Oktoberfest... Lynn Beers and Pat Hoffman! What a wonderful evening with a delicious, varied menu (all the meat cooked by Mark Machacek) and home-baked cakes, sign-up/ reception and a beautifully decorated Fellowship Hall (thanks to Cindy Sealander), a wonderful concert by Larry Zaidan and his Tuba Quartet, Tricky Tray (basket raffle) led by Don Widmayer, with assistants Julia Syvarth and Kristina Demou, and a sing-a-long, led by Pastor. The Men's Group manned the kitchen, Walter Lauer tended the keg, and our youth helped serve. Younger children were entertained by Katie Lauer and Kathryn Filatov. Many others pitched in to set up, serve and clean up.

Thanks to all who volunteered for this event, and to all who came and added to the festiveness.

CHRISTMAS GIFTING CHALLENGE!

As we start making lists this year, we might all be considering cutting down. If that is our situation, imagine how much harder it is for many others. This is a wonderful opportunity to sit down with our families, talk about our blessings, and think how we can use this season to reach out to those experiencing greater needs.

We had the opportunity to meet new people, share a little about our life and faith journeys, and share a good meal together. Our next meeting will take place on Tuesday, January 17, 2012 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. in the church parlor. Child care is available if you let us know in advance. You are cordially invited to join us for the next meeting. Bring yourselves, an open heart, an open mind, and an appetite! During the Christmas Eve 7:30 PM Family Service, we will hold our Christmas Eve Children's Pageant.

All roles are non-speaking, except for the lesson readers. We will have one practice, in early December.

We need the following: 4 readers, Mary, Joseph, 3 Wise Men, 2 Shepherds, 1 Main angel, and 3 cherub angels (younger children are best for this).

If interested, please contact Joanie Hampton at 845-398-8832 or call the church office at 845-735-2243.

CREATIVE PLAY NEWS

Creative Play is bustling with Holiday activities. The children are preparing special Christmas gifts for their families, made by their own hands. They are learning what the spirit of giving is all about. Our 4 year old Creative Play classes are rehearsing for their Christmas play, "Santa's Workshop". Fellowship Hall will be turned into the North Pole where the elves will be getting the dancing dolls, wooden soldiers, spinning tops and trains all ready for a ride on Santa's sled. All the classes will be entertained on December 22nd & 23rd by our favorite performers, Beth & Scott, who will have the classes singing and swinging! The children will then celebrate in their classrooms with a snack of Holiday cookies baked by parent volunteers. We wish all our families a most joyous Christmas season, and will see everyone when school resumes on Tuesday, January 3, 2012.

Just a note: Our Mitten, Scarf and Hat Tree will be set up at the entrance of Creative Play from November 28th through January 6th. Please feel free to help us decorate; all items will be donated to children in Appalachia.

WELCA HAPPENINGS

WELCA had a great November meeting with speaker, Jeffrey Keahon, from Rotary, He spoke about Polio and how it has almost been eradicated from the earth. It was very interesting and enjoyed by those in attendance. Next month, our Christmas party will be held in the Church Parlor on Wednesday, December 7th at 1:30 p.m.. We will exchange gifts, and if you are interested in coming and being a part of our party, please bring a grabbag gift of $10 or less for our gift exchange. If you don't want to participate, that is fine, just come for the fun and the refreshments.

WELCA is putting together Personal Care Kits, they used to be called Health Kits. But things have changed. Now you need:

1. One light to medium weight bath-size towel, approx 52x27 inches, dark color recommended.
2. Two bath-size bars of soap (4 to 5 oz) any brand, in original wrapping.
3. One adult-size toothbrush in its original wrapping.
4. One sturdy comb, with packaging removed.
5. One metal nail clipper with or without attached file; remove packaging.

All items should be new and in good condition. Wrap all items in the towel and tie securely with ribbons or yarn. A basket will be available in the Education Building lobby for donations.

Do not enclose the kit in plastic bags. No substitutions. Bring items to WELCA and we will send them off in the New Year. Thank you for your help.

January 8th, 2012

A chance to start the New Year by giving the most important gift!

There is a great need for all blood types at present, so we ask you to mark your calendar for the annual Pearl River Blood Drive. Red Cross officials say just one person donating blood could potentially save three lives.

"At this point, there is no substitute for human blood. We do not have a synthetic or alternative source. We really do rely on human donors, our donors, to give blood," Sylvia Kacheris with the American Red Cross said. Details on time and place will be in Cross Connections.
